1. The first part of the document is a letter from the President of the United States to the Congress, dated January 1, 1801. It is a very important document, as it is the first time that the President has addressed the Congress since the establishment of the office. The letter is written in a very formal and dignified style, and it contains many important points. The President discusses the state of the Union, the progress of the government, and the future of the country. He also mentions the recent election of Thomas Jefferson as President, and he expresses his confidence in the new administration. The letter is a very important document, as it is the first time that the President has addressed the Congress since the establishment of the office.
