the first time in 1977
and was first reported in 1980.
The disease has been described in India,
China and Japan.
It is also known as the "black foot disease".
The disease is caused by a bacterium called Candida albicans.
This bacterium is found in the soil and water. It can also be found in the human body.
The disease is usually seen in people who have poor hygiene or who are immunocompetent. It can also be seen in people who have diabetes or who are immunocompetent.
